2nd Battle of Bull Run

28 August 1862

Following the recent events of Peninsula Campaign, a portion of our forces initiated a wide flanking maneuver and raided the Union supply depot at Manassas Junction.

Pope's line of communications with Washington was threatened and he had to abandon his defensive line at Rappahannock River.

We withdrew a few miles to the northwest and took up a defensive position on Stony Ridge, with hope to lure Pope into a trap. The rest of our army had left Richmond almost undefended to reinforce us and attack the unsuspecting Union army.
